This year, 2010, is an important and historic one for Swedish Medical Center, as we celebrate the June day, 100 years ago, when Swedish began providing high-quality health care to people in the Puget Sound region. There is much to be proud of in this century of growth and service, and some of Swedish’s accomplishments and milestones are described in this issue of IMPACT.

In the years since Dr. Nils Johanson and 10 other Swedish-American Seattle residents opened the 24-bed nonprofit Swedish Hospital, a key factor in Swedish’s steady growth has been the willingness of people from the community to give both their time and money to support activities, improvements and enhancements that allow Swedish to care for our community.

Through the decades, our supporters have helped us to continually renew Swedish so that it has remained a place where people from our region who face serious medical problems know they will find the finest facilities, the latest medical technologies, and the highly skilled, dedicated, and humane caregivers that have made Swedish a national leader in delivering world-class, patient-centered care.

This tradition of philanthropic support for Swedish reached a new and inspiring level in the year that just ended. Total contributions to Swedish Medical Center Foundation for 2009 were almost $17.5 million, exceeding our previous high by close to 20 percent. To date, we have received more than $8 million in gifts and pledges toward our $10 million goal for the True Family Women’s Cancer Center and nearly $7 million for The Ben and Catherine Ivy Center for Advanced Brain Tumor Treatment at the Swedish Neuroscience Institute.

This unprecedented level of generosity has occurred during challenging economic times for our country, for Swedish, for our patients and for many of our donors. We have been humbled by this outpouring of support and sacrifice. Swedish, like many of you, has had to tighten its belt since the economic downturn began. The pattern of reduced revenues and rising medical costs that is being felt throughout our national health-care system has forced people at every level at Swedish to find ways to do more with less in order to remain true to our tradition of providing exceptional care to our patients on a daily basis.

I am proud to report that both Swedish and our Foundation are succeeding in meeting these challenges, and that we are both hopeful and optimistic about Swedish’s future as it enters its second century of service.

Some of the major improvements we have accomplished or are planning for Swedish are described in these pages, and I can’t emphasize enough how much of the optimism and excitement that underlie these stories is attributable to the enthusiasm and generosity of you, our donors and volunteers. To each of you, at every level of support, please accept our thanks for all that you do and have done on behalf of Swedish.

In the coming months, we will be holding events to celebrate Swedish’s centennial. I hope that each of you will find the time to be a part of this celebration and that, as you celebrate, you will realize you are also honoring yourselves. Each of you is a vital part of Swedish and of the long tradition of generosity and philanthropy that has kept this great medical center growing for 100 years. Because of you, and with your continued support, we look forward to sustaining Swedish Medical Center as a vital health-care delivery resource for our children and grandchildren well into the future.

Sincerely,

Don Theophilus

Chris Elliott Fund for Glioblastoma Brain Cancer Research

The Chris Elliott Fund (CEF) for Glioblastoma Brain Cancer Research is a non-profit organization founded in 2002 by Chris and Dellann Elliott which focuses on raising awareness through education, advocacy and research.

Today, CEF provides resources, information and support for people living with brain cancer. Specifically, CEF funds groundbreaking research in the Christopher S. Elliott Neuro-oncology Lab for Glioblastoma Brain Research and Applied Cancer Science Center at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, Mass.

In 2009, the Chris Elliott Fund launched their Integrated Patient Support Program at the Swedish Neuroscience Institute where they provide a multitude of services and outreach for the brain cancer patient. In addition, CEF made a $300,000 pledge to support the Chris Elliott Fund Patient Support Specialist at The Ben and Catherine Ivy Center for Advanced Brain Tumor Treatment in Seattle's Swedish Neuroscience Institute. The Patient Support Specialist is dedicated to easing the stress upon patients and their families following a brain cancer diagnosis, and Dellann has helped the Specialist launch patient support groups to help brain tumor patients understand there is now hope for a cure to this disease and to talk about the advancements available at the Ivy Center. For more information, visit www.chriselliottfund.org.

Chris Elliott lost his battle against glioblastoma in 2002, but his legacy continues through the Chris Elliott Fund for Glioblastoma Brain Cancer Research.

Martin Selig
Fund supports Swedish Heart & Vascular Institute

Martin Selig has experienced firsthand the great care provided by the nation-ally renowned physicians at the Swedish Heart & Vascular Institute. After a short stay at the Swedish Cherry Hill Campus in the Fall of 2008, Martin made a $100,000 gift to the Institute to help launch the Center for Advanced Cardiovascular Integrated Treatment. When fully operational, the Center will offer heart patients a multidisciplinary hybrid pro-cedural suite, an integrative care coordinator and access to innovative clinical trials in honor of Drs. Peter Demopoulos and Adam Zivin.

Martin Selig Real Estate has owned, developed and managed some of the Seattle area’s premier commercial buildings and properties and today owns a portfolio of more than 4.25 million square feet in Seattle.
